FATHER WALLER.

EULOGY DELIVERED BY HON. G. W. PARRISH BEFORE THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION OF WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY, AT ITS SEVENTH ANNUAL REUNION, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25TH, 1873.

Friends and Associates: Though feeling my inability to add a fitting tribute to the memory of "Father Waller," yet as I seem to hear that swelling anthem,

Waft, waft, ye winds the story,
And you, ye waters roll,
Till like a sea of glory
It spreads from pole to pole,"

As it ascended from the old church in Green street, New York, on the evening of the 3d of October, 1839, at the farewell meeting of the missionary family for Oregon, and as I listen to its echoes reverberating from battlement to battle mount along the eternal heights; and as I seem to see the good old ship Lausane as, six days afterward, she silently glided adown the waters of New York harbor out into the open sea, bearing that little family of fifty-one souls, who were leaving behind all that was near and dear to them, to cast their lot in a wilderness, of which the poet has said,

"Where rolls the Oregon,
And hears no sound save its own dashings;"

And as, after a lapse of eight long months in voyaging around "the Horn," among the islands of the Pacific and across the Columbia bar, I again see those fearless men and women as they sink on bended knee, and return thanksgiving to God, preserving them from the perils of the deep; and as I seem to hear the answer descending from the Eternal Throne, "Well done, good and faithful servants," "Lo, I am with you always even unto the end,"—with all these glowing events in the lives of our pioneers ever present before my mind, I am irresistibly impelled to add my voice in praise of one, at least, of those Christian heroes who so nobly battled to give us, their children, the advantages which we so richly possess.

I believe Father Waller to have been an honest man and a Christian. And when I say this, I mean much, for in the midst of the corruption of the present age, I am inclined to the belief that there are few, very few, who are really entitled to the name.

Of his early life I could speak much, but time will not admit. From the time of his arrival on this coast until his death, his life was one long period of unceasing toil. Every good work had his support. Was there a bed of sickness and of pain, there would you find Father Waller ever ready to assist with counsel or his means. His intimate friendships were few, but earnest and unchanging. If any fault he had it was in loving his friends too much. His true life and character shone forth most clearly in conversation with the young. He felt toward them as though they were each and all members of his own family. He instinctively loved them all, and he took the liberty, no matter what the time and place, to sow the seeds of wisdom in the young and susceptible heart. At such times his whole being would warm up under the influence of his theme, and then it was wonderful to mark the scintillations of wisdom as they flashed from his eye, and his words as they leaped from his lips. He washed the gold of wisdom from the sands wherever it was found; he cleft it from the rocks; he gleaned it among the ruins of frail mortality.

In 1857 Father Waller was appointed agent of this University. He measured with careful eye the difficulties of the duty devolving upon him, and by the aid of Divine Providence upon which he at all times relied, resolved to discharge it earnestly and unceasingly; at times slowly but always surely, he labored to complete his task. He knew how to abide his time. He never sought to electrify the public mind by taking an advanced position with his opinions, but studied to move forward and keep pace with the tide of events. You who know him intimately with myself, know that when engaged in his good work he never allowed a rebuff to turn him from his purpose; he had a fixed determination to perform his allotted task; all his energies were devoted to it, and with the aid of the Divine presence ever hovering near he kept to the mark and accomplished his design. If he failed at one place he left it for the time being and tried another, but when circumstances were more favorable again renewed the attack upon the first. "Never give up, God willing!" was his motto. From his efforts, together with those of his noble co-laborers, the vine of learning took deep root in this retreat where now we stand, and spreading forth its tendrils, covered the hills with its shadow and filled the valleys with its fragrance, until, like the cedars of old, it embraced within its shade all within the land who were hungering and thirsting after knowledge, and then began to arise this beautiful temple, monument of those who gave their life labor for the education and care of coming generations. From day to day, from hour to hour, of its earliest existence, the life of this Institution seemed to be the life of Father Waller. He walked in its light, reasoned with its reason, thought with its power of thought, and felt the beatings of its throbbing heart. As it languished he languished, and as it began to expand and grow in magnificence, so did his heart begin to glow with rapture and his features become illuminated with the light of joy.

But the caprice of human existence bends to the inexorable hand of Omnipotence, which plants its foot on all the centuries and has neither change of purpose nor repose. On the morning of the 26th of December last the silent and mysterious messenger came through the thick darkness, and when the hour struck for frail humanity to throw off the mantle of mortality and robe itself in the garb of immortality, unseen hands drew back the bolts, and through the open gates passed the fleeting soul of Father Waller. Then, for the first time, he beheld in reality those heavenly beauties which he had been enabled long to dimly comprehend through the eye of an ever living faith. Cut down in his usefulness, and leaving behind a host of sorrowing friends, his immortal spirit was summoned above to finish his work, and reap his reward as he labored. Kind friends laid his earthly body in the silent tomb, beneath the shade of the green tree, and while the shadows of the first night were resting upon his sepulcher the flames shot forth from the old University building, making a gorgeous funeral pile in honor of his memory. Dust to dust, ashes to ashes! Lost to earth, at home in heaven!

But is he dead? Has all of Father Waller passed away forever from our midst? No, friends. Even while I stand here and attempt to add a tribute to his memory, and as you sit listening to my words—even now, his spirit, unseen but not unfelt, is hovering above us. Not as we were accustomed to see him, but radiant as the sun at noonday, bright as the evening star, smiling down in ever watchful care, inciting us to renewed energy, and urging us never to give up the good work which he began.

And I cannot close without saying to our dear Alma Mater, fruit of his labor, Go on! go on! Heavenly hands are bearing you up and sustaining you in your good work. The spirit of Father Waller is too true to its instincts ever to desert you. His hands, unseen, will ever linger with caressing touch around your lofty dome; his snowy mantle will ever guard you against the chilling blasts of winter and bring back the sweet flowers of spring. With willing hands below, and heaven and the angels above, I say, go on!

Earl Granville informs the committee of the British and Foreign Anti-Slavery Society that the memorial to the Khedive, urging the abolition of the slave-trade in Egypt, has been presented to his Highness, who assured Colonel Stanton of his willingness to do all that lay in his power to put an end to the slave-trade, but remarked that time would be required for its total suppression. His Highness added, that stringent orders had been given toward stopping the introduction into Egypt of slaves from neighboring countries, and toward releasing those that may be discovered to have been introduced. When practicable, such released negroes are to be sent back to their own country, and where this is impossible, proper employment is to be found for them, the children of both sexes being sent to the Government schools.

Sir Bartle Frere reports that 30,000 persons are annually exported from Africa and sold into slavery.

PUGET SOUND CORRESPONDENCE.

SEATTLE, June 27, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

As is well known in your city, this week, Judge Rice and Capt. J. C. Ainsworth, were to visit Puget Sound for the purpose of finally settling and permanently locating the western terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and it is a question of such vast significance to the people of this Territory—so vitally affecting their interests,—and indeed, the interests of the entire Pacific coast, that the probable and real results of their visit, may be a matter of importance and interest to the people of Portland—more especially, as many of them represent property here.

These gentlemen, Rice and Ainsworth, arrived in Olympia on Monday last, and requested a conference with the principal property owners of that place, concerning railroad matters. The result of this conference amounted to nothing further than a declaration upon the part of the officials that at present no branch of the road would be built to that place, and disclaiming having ever entered into any agreement with Olympia, or promising to locate a road to that town. The Directors then took the Alida, chartered for their use, and came down the Sound. We pass over what may have been done at Steilacoom, as it is a foregone conclusion that the Directors were instructed by the Board in New York to locate the terminus within certain prescribed limits, and that these limits exclude Steilacoom as a location. The choice lies between three points Tacoma, Seattle and Muckilteo. After arriving at Tacoma, the Directors desired the citizens there to canvass the matter, and ascertain how much in lands or money, or either, or both, they would give to secure the terminus. In response to which the people of Tacoma offered the Company 2,600 acres, or very near that amount, situated on the bay, which was a very liberal offer. Whether any money was subscribed we do not know, though if any, it was certainly a small sum, as the land was the only subsidy mentioned by the Directors here. These Directors reached

SEATTLE

On Tuesday evening, accompanied by Gen. Sprague. They made the same proposition to Seattle, that had been submitted to the people of Tacoma, and Wednesday afternoon, continued their tour to Muckilteo. On Wednesday evening a large meeting was held in the

PAVILION,

For the purpose of securing, if possible, a donation of sufficient generosity to induce the railroad company to give Seattle the choice. The meeting was called to order by A. A. Denny, ex-delegate to Congress, and James McNaught, Esq., addressed the audience, setting forth the objects of the meeting, the necessity of both speedy and liberal action, as the Directors stated they were to report to the Board at New York, and decide upon the matter on or before the Fourth of July, and closed by offering one half of his entire property to the company in accordance with their proposition. Other gentlemen followed by donating one-half to the company subject to their proposal. A committee was formed to canvass the matter thoroughly, and yesterday and yesterday evening the following amount in lands and coin had been raised, and we have no doubt but it will be greatly enlarged before Saturday evening: In lands, situated in the city additions and near town, 1,700 acres, exclusive of 275 lots in the city; and in coin there has been subscribed $50,000, which will probably reach $75,000 before Saturday night.

MUCKILTEO

Is almost entirely owned by one man, and we understand he has made a most handsome offer. But inasmuch as the choice belongs to whichever point gives the most, it is every safe supposition to award this cause of rivalry to Seattle—the only place on Puget Sound which nature has perfectly fitted for so important a position.

A FIRE

Was discovered in the store of Rothschild & Co., at Port Townsend, this morning about 2 o'clock. By great exertion, the building was saved and the fire extinguished: not, however, until goods to the amount of $15,000 or $20,000 were destroyed. Had the fire been discovered a little later, almost the entire business portion of the place would have been destroyed. It was insured.

MARINE.

Bark Gem of the Ocean, Capt. Tuttle, arrived here on the 19th, 14 days from San Francisco, with assorted merchandise for this and other points. She will probably load here or at Freeport with lumber for San Francisco.

Bark Scotland, after taking on 405 tons of coal, was hauled over to Freeport for a deck load of lumber.

Bark Osaga arrived on the 21th, 13 days from San Francisco, with assorted merchandise; will probably load with lumber here or at Freeport.

Schooner D. S. Williams sailed from Freeport, on last Tuesday night, for San Francisco, loaded with lumber.

On the 23d, at Port Blakely, ship Canada was loading lumber for South America, and bark Martha Rideout with piles for San Francisco. Brig Levi Stevens arrived at that port on the 18th.

Loading at Utsalady on the 23d, ships Washington Libby, lumber for Melbourne; bark Tiltetea, spars, Hong Kong; bark Amelia, lumber, Sydney; bark C. L. Taylor, lumber, New Zealand.

THE PAINT BRUSH NUISANCE.—Among the minor aggravations of life, such as musketoes, squash bugs and cut worms, is the inevitable paint-brush that goes about in some invisible hand, defacing and daubing fences and roadside bowlders with nauseating and impudent advertisements. In this beautiful June season one cannot ride in any direction without being reminded of about all the disagreeable and disgusting diseases that flesh is heir to. Rival vermifuges do picket duty; the traveler is told to use Keefe's specific; yelling babies are thrust before his tormented vision by Mrs. Winslow's soothing syrup; he is ordered to try this and that disgusting compound. He unchecks his horse at some refreshing horse-trough, and there stares out from its venerable moss-grown length the command to go to Malley's or to the 1000 P. Corn house. He is reminded of tailor's bills and every imaginable thing that he had rather not be reminded of. Trailing the graceful outlines of some fine old tree, mildewed rags flutter and flaunt out their notices for him to go to such and such a place, where he will be taken in and done for at cost. There is no use in crying, "Oh, for a lodge in some vast wilderness" for sure as he should get there, he would find the sides of that lodge plastered over with directions. It rides up the free-born American spirit to be told in this way at every turn what to do. It is a very cheap nuisance. The fences belong to somebody else, the opportunity is a stolen one, and paint is cheap. It is a sly nuisance. We never saw anybody doing it, though we have often wished we could, in order to free our minds.—Springfield Republican.

The great College Regatta will take place over the Springfield (Mass.) course July 17th. Ten colleges have entered crews. Amherst has been the winner in the last two years.

THE TERRITORIES.

Seattle will probably be lighted by gas within the next 90 days.

The military post at Walla Walla will soon be permanently garrisoned.

The people of Walla Walla are at present enjoying most delightful weather.

The Kalama Beacon will hereafter be published on Monday, instead of Saturday.

Prof. Fowler, of phrenological fame, commenced a series of six lectures at Walla Walla on Saturday evening, June 28th.

While engaged in loading a vessel at Seabeck, W. T., June 28th, a Swede named Lawrence Johnson had his leg broken in two places.

Parties who lately arrived at Walla Walla from the Palouse country, say that the crickets are ravaging that region to a fearful extent.

Jacob S. Drake, sentenced to the Idaho Penitentiary for four years, for shooting at Thomas Kingsbury with intent to kill, has been pardoned by Gov. Drake.

The new road between Walla Walla and Waitsburg has been surveyed and marked out. The distance from Walla Walla to Waitsburg by the road newly located is between eighteen and nineteen miles.

Two men named Scranton and Liberty, residing in the Spokane country, having thoroughly convinced their neighbors of a proneness to appropriate cattle not bearing their brands, have been notified to leave the country. Scranton had been tried on a charge of stealing cattle at Colville, but, contrary to general expectation, he was acquitted.

A company of 100 men is being organized in St. Louis to locate and survey an immense estate of rich agricultural and mineral lands in Arizona, and lay off a city on the Gila river, on the line of the Great Southern Railway, which will be the depot of all northern and southern Arizona and the Mexican States of Sonora and Sinaloa. The expedition will set out about the 1st of July.

We hear, says the Kalama Beacon of June 30th, that the great banking-house of Jay Cooke & Co. will establish a branch at the Terminus immediately upon the point being officially announced. Two young gentlemen, sons of Hon. Pitt Cooke—who is partner and manager of the banking-house of Jay Cooke & Co., at New York—are now at Puget Sound preparing to open a banking house at the Terminus city.

From the Walla Walla Spirit of the West of June 26th: "E" Troop, First Cavalry, Col. Sanford commanding, passed through this city last Saturday, on route for Fort Lapwai. This is the Troop which, some months ago, was ordered to the Modoc country, and passed through this place on its way thither; but becoming snow bound in the Blue Mountains, the Troop only succeeded in reaching Camp Harney, and are now, according to orders, on their return.

We learn from Mr. Wm. Jameson, says the Olympia Courier of June 29th, that a logger named August McDonald was drowned in the Dougiswhpse river, which empties into Hood's Canal opposite Seabeck, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 17th, while driving logs down the river. The deceased was a native of Nova Scotia and was about 32 years of age. He was well known in that region, and highly respected by all, and his death will be mourned by a large circle of friends.

The Walla Walla Spirit of the West of June 26th says: "Last Monday two prisoners arrived in this city from Colville under sentence of court. One of them, Geo. Teufel, a United States prisoner, convicted of hindering an officer in arresting a deserter, and sentenced for a term of two years, will go to Olympia to serve his sentence out. The other, Ferdinand Cossoke, was convicted of receiving stolen goods, and sentenced for one year, which term he will serve out in this county jail."

From the Kalama Beacon of June 30th: "On Saturday, the 21st, the flood reached its maximum height, being 18.6 feet above low-water mark, and 20 in. less than the rise of 1871. It fell two inches on Sunday the 22d inst., and has been gradually receding all the time since, and at its present stage is 14.9 feet above the low water mark. There being two or three well constructed sidewalk passeways from the railroad track across the bottom eastward to the rising ground, no particular inconvenience was incurred by the overflow."

Mining prospects at Rocky Bar, Idaho Territory, are very flattering. The Vish lode, a comparatively new one, about sixty feet above the Idaho, is said to be "perfectly lousy" with gold. Capt. Settle, Keen, Pierce and Ward are working the mine, and have recently run a tunnel and struck the mine eighty feet deep, where they find a well defined ledge four feet wide. Heretofore the mine has been worked from the top where the ledge is narrow, although it has paid over $200 to the ton. Mr. Richardson says he could pick up in the course of a day on their present dump pile, five hundred pounds of rock that would go five dollars to the pound.

The Walla Walla Spirit of the West says: "The boat Yakima on her return trip from Lewiston last Thursday, in passing the Palouse ferry, struck with her smoke stack the wire which was stretched across the river, and those on board were so astonished by the collision as to imagine themselves for a time the victims of a first class steamboat accident. The wire on one side, however, pulled out from the bolt, but becoming fastened around the steamer, held her for some time against the stream. Axes were brought into requisition, and the wire chopped in two, and the steamer pursued "the even tenor of its way." The ferryman now thinks he has a first class action for damages to his wire and business, while the steamboat people are quite confident that a cause of action lies in the ferryman's obstructing the way.

Dispatches from the commandant at Camp Supply, Indian Territory, to General Sherman, state that the whereabouts of the Cheyennes, Kiowas, and Arapahoes are unknown. In transmitting the dispatches Gen. Sheridan endorses as follows.

HEADQUARTERS MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISSOURI, June 13, 187...

Respectfully forwarded for information of the General of the Army and Indian Bureau. Both the Cheyennes and Kiowas are off their reservations.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Lieut.-Gen.

In the transmission to the Secretary of War Gen. Sherman indorses as follows

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY, June 14, 1873.

Respectfully submitted to the Secretary of War. These are the Indians to conciliate Santanta and Big Tree are to be turned loose. I have no more faith in them than I have in wolves. I once risked my life to get their surrender. I don't propose to take any more risks. I hope the Indian Bureau will arrange matters without my aid.

W. T. SHERMAN.

General Sheridan is entirely in error in saying the Indians are off their reservation, at least so say the Indian Bureau, who aver that the Indians have the right to visit other reservations to the Indian territory if they do it in a friendly way.

The San Francisco Chronicle says

An encyclopedia of the Pacific Coast is being compiled by H. H. Bancroft, of the firm of A. L. Bancroft & Co. Possessing a library of some 150,000 volumes, besides a multitude of documents, all relating to the country this side of the Rocky Mountains, Mr. Bancroft has abundant materials at hand for the task he has undertaken. Among his manuscript are autograph letters of Christopher Columbus and the report of the first ecclesiastical meeting ever held in Mexico when under Spanish rule. The history of the Indian tribes will receive especial attention, and everything of importance that pertains to the past and present of this section of the world will be given a place in the encyclopedia, which when completed, promises to be the most valuable work ever issued on the Pacific Coast.

Politics Warming Up

The period of the most perfect quietude in political matters throughout the United States is that which immediately succeeds the Presidential election. It is the calm that follows the storm. This calm was the more remarkable after the last Presidential contest by reason of the peculiar relations sustained by the two great parties toward each other and toward political questions at the end of the contest and in consequence thereof; and also by reason of the sad event of the death of one of the candidates occurring immediately after the election, and, as all supposed, being brought about as much by the labors of the campaign and the mortification of defeat as by any other cause. The melancholy circumstances attending the death of Mr. Greeley would have been sufficient to allay in a measure the strife of parties, at a time when there was some principle at issue between the rival political organizations; much more when one of those parties had definitely abandoned all opposition to the views of the other upon every important question that had divided them. The public endorsement by the Democracy of all the essential points in the Republican creed, left nothing to be said, and the partisan press has been forced to seek other staple than political discussion with which to fill its columns and entertain its readers.

But the era of peace is over. The political cauldron is beginning to bubble in many directions. In California, parties have commenced active operations, and in some counties their candidates are already named and in the field. Massachusetts is in a ferment over the nominations soon to be made in State Convention. In Maine the Republicans have already made their nomination for Governor, and the canvass is beginning to wax warm.

The contest is for men now, instead of measures, so far as national politics goes. There is no question of moment before the people upon which it is possible to organize parties as heretofore, and the question now is, who shall administer the Government, the Republicans or the Democrats. There can be little doubt as to how the people will decide this question. The Republicans are the party of progress. They have introduced and incorporated into the administration of public affairs, in spite of the most determined opposition from the Democracy, those principles of equality and equity which have become the distinguishing features of our Government; and now, that the opposition has ceased, they are certainly as well qualified to conduct the Government in accordance with those principles as their old-time opponents. Every indication is that such is to be the verdict of the people. The campaigns of this fall will hardly be so sharp as they have been in times past, when great principles were at stake, but they will be sharp enough to preserve party lines in all general elections, and to show the Republican party still solid, determined and successful.

The Outlook in France.

Cynical observers of events in France, says the Boston Advertiser, will find ample cause for the sneers in what has taken place since Marshal McMahon succeeded M. Thiers. The hope entertained by Republicans that as a result of the Government of Thiers and the Republic, the disposition of the French people to be content with the existing order of things would be eradicated, that journal thinks has not been realized, but on the contrary, the imperial policy revived so soon by McMahon, seems to be accepted by the people of France, not merely with apparent satisfaction, but every indication of positive satisfaction. We have not been apt to think that the people of France were addicted to any very extraordinary degree, to be content with the statu quo, but we do not doubt that a majority of them prefer a monarchy in some form, to a Republic under any form that is possible to France. Reason is not wanting why he should. The experiences of that country in its attempts at a Republican Government have been most unhappy, while the regime of imperialism has given France in large allowance that national grandeur and prestige which are peculiarly gratifying to the French heart. It is not so much to be free as to be great that fills the true Frenchman's ideal of a nation.

Close observers of the events that have been transpiring in France for nearly a year past, have thought there were unmistakable signs visible, of a growing sentiment favorable to the restoration of the Empire, and not unfavorable to the aspirations and pretensions of the Bonapartes That McMahon is one of those who would wish this project to be successful we have no doubt. It is therefore highly probable that France will before a great while slide quietly back into the imperial groove from which she escaped only through the force of events that can scarcely be said to have belonged to, or grown out of French policy. The Republic is an accident, and few intelligent persons will be greatly disappointed, though many will be greatly grieved to see the restoration of a Monarchical government for France at any time.

A two column leader in the Washington Chronicle, over the signature "G. B. C.," treats of "Senator Harlan and his Slanderers." The article reviews Mr. Harlan's life from the time when he was first mentioned in the newspapers as "an awkward farmer's boy, who occasionally came from his labor in the fields to address public meetings on politics, temperance, and the like subjects, surprising everybody with the force, eloquence and effectiveness of his reasoning." He next appeared as a Sunday School lecturer. Then this son of an awkward farmer received an invitation to deliver a Fourth of July oration. It is much to his credit that he stayed in the community long enough to deliver his speech, and that all this while his name was Harlan. Within ten years from his graduation he was in the United States Senate, then in Mr. Lincoln's cabinet, then in the Senate again. The writer has strong faith in Mr. Harlan's purity, and indignantly denies the Credit Mobilier accusations which were so recently made in Congress.

We hear that the Judges of the Supreme Court of Illinois, former associates of ex-Chief Justice Lawrence, who has just been defeated for re-election, now threaten to resign. Perhaps they will reconsider when the vision of a departing salary, and possible political preferment, shall arise. This outburst of judicial indignation would be a good thing if it originated in the fact that Craig, to secure his election, had to pledge himself to a certain class of rulings. Unfortunately, this is not the case. There is simply a pique at the affront offered their candidates.

The State Republican Convention of Maine met in Bangor on the 19th inst., and nominated Nelson Dingley, Jr., for Governor, who received an enormous majority. The platform of the Convention is as follows The first and second resolutions declare that the history of the Republican party has shown its usefulness, and that it is the true party of Reform. The third demands rigid economy in the administration of the Government. The fourth calls for a repeal of the salary increase. The fifth condemns in the strongest terms the practice of loading appropriation bills with irrelevant and objectionable amendments. The sixth declares against any further grants of public lands or credit to canals or railroads. The seventh applauds the action of Congress in fearlessly prosecuting the Credit Mobilier investigation. The eighth regrets and deprecates the increase of private legislation. The platform was unanimously adopted.

For a confiding trust that reposes sweetly on the "promise to pay" of the dear people, we beg leave to commend one W. R. Jewell, who has published a prospectus of a monthly pamphlet called "The Siege," at Lafayette, Indiana. Mr. Jewell proposes to stop the importation and manufacture, as well as the sale and use of liquor; to break down all monopolies; bring about the repeal of lax divorce laws; regain for the family the healthful influence it should exert in our social system; substitute arbitration for war; promote universal love; strengthen the moral attributes of the government; enforce home economy; establish a non-sectarian school system; suppress political partisanship; supercede selfish political economy by a more philanthropic plan, and defend labor against capital. All for $1 a year! Go in Jewell!

The last California Legislature adopted a most remarkable election law, one provision of which requires that the tickets shall be 12 inches long, and that the printed matter shall be "single-leaded" and in long primer type. In the county of San Francisco there are 62 officers to be voted for, and their names and those of the offices which they seek, cannot possibly be printed in legal form on a ticket 12 inches long. And now the people of San Francisco talk of putting their legislators out to learn the trade of printing. Also, they want to know how they are going to vote in September.

For a week or two past Eastern papers have been discussing the preparations for what is called "the coming prize-fight," between McCoole and Allen, two noted bruisers. It is a peculiarity of these fights that they are always "coming." To the inevitable brutality of the old prize ring has been added the most consummate and consistent cowardice, accompanied by a scientific perfection in the art of swindling. These professional ruffians have made their calling safe, profitable and ridiculous.

An Eastern exchange thinks that if the reports about Henry Ward Beecher's recent Universalistic sermons shall prove true, they may create the impression that the Bowen-Tilton stories had some foundation, and that Beecher feels the need of a generous provision for future salvation.

A strong effort is being made by the friends of Charles Russell, the murderer of Crotty, to induce the Governor to grant a commutation of sentence. The twelve jurymen who found him guilty have signed a petition to that effect.

The French creditors of the estate of F. L. A. Pioche have brought suit in a San Francisco Court to recover $2,350,000 from the said estate. The complaint in the case covers 1,233 pages of legal cap, printed.

GENERAL NOTES.

The proprietors of a New Orleans steamer have been mulcted in damages under the civil rights law for refusing a cabin passage to a colored woman.

One of the Vienna correspondents states that Bunker Hill Monument could stand under the dome of the exhibition hall, and not come within 40 feet of the roof.

The total amount of "back pay" returned to the United States Treasury is $192,017 34, and the number of Senators and Representatives who declined to receive it is 46.

A result of the "Civil Damage Law:" An Indiana woman, whose husband was killed on a railroad while drunk, has obtained $8,000 damages from the man who sold him the liquor.

Man is usually considered the Lord of Creation, but in India certain creatures appear to be the Lords of him. In that happy country, for instance, in 1871, there were no less than 18,078 persons killed by tigers, cobras and other wild and venomous animals. What's worse is, that tigers, snakes and the like are constantly increasing, and the nearer they approach to civilization the fiercer they grow, and the less disposed to quit their haunts.

LOUISIANA DEBT.—The debt of the State of Louisiana, at the time the State was reconstructed, was about $7,000,000. On the 1st of January the bonded debt was, according to Kellogg's State Auditor, $21,801,800, and it is currently reported that Gov. Kellog has since signed additional bonds for the North Louisianna and Texas railroad. The miscellaneous debts of the State were, according to the same report, $2,282,446 43. To this must be added the warrants issued by the present administration, during the first four months it was in power, to pay the expenses of its Legislature, and all the general expenses of the Government before the collection of taxes began. The contingent debt of the State, which everybody believes it will have to pay, was $5,183,602 47. This makes the total amount of bonded and miscellaneous debts for which the State was actually and contingently liable on the 1st of January last (according to Auditor Clinton), $29,567,849 95. The bonds and warrants issued since that time will swell the amount to some thirty odd millions. Finally, the Legislature has granted State aid to various corporations, amounting to $11,489,000, the bonds for which have not yet been issued. Thus the present liabilities of the State and the appropriations voted by the Legislature for which bonds are yet to be issued, are about six times as great as they were when the State was reconstructed, while there is very little to show for the increased indebtedness.—N. Y. Tribune Letter.

The Iowa Republican State Convention met on the 12th ult. at Des Moines—all counties in the convention but twelve fully represented, 753 delegates being present; only 17 absent. Governor C. C. Carpenter was nominated by acclamation for re-election, Jacob Dysart, on second ballot for Lieutenant Governor, beating D. W. Adams, the farmers' candidate, on first ballot, by 141 votes. Col. Alonzo Abernethy was nominated for Superintendent of Public Instruction; J. M. Beck was nominated for re-election as Supreme Judge by acclamation.

The resolves reaffirm devotion to and confidence in Republican principles and party, and express the belief that all needed reforms may be secured most speedily through its agency; declare against the oppression of monopolies and in favor of the State controlling all the franchises it creates; denounce the Credit Mobilier corruption generally; denounce the back salary steal, and demand the condemnation of all connected with it, and the repeal of the bill, announce sympathy with every movement to secure for agriculture and labor their due influence, interests and rights, and say the Republican party will be their ally in every just effort to attain that end.

OREGON.

New hay is selling at Eugene City at $7 50 per ton.

Everybody out at Hillsboro are getting ready for the Fourth of July.

The Eagle bird will not flap his wings on the Fourth at the Dalles this year.

The Odd Fellows' cemetery at Eugene has been laid off into convenient sized lots.

James Whitney of the Dalles was thrown from his horse last week, and had one of his legs broken.

On Monday, the 23d inst., the appraisers of property in the Wallowa left Union for that place. They are of the opinion that the valley will be retained by the whites.

Prof. J. B. McElhony will spend a week in Hillsboro, giving instructions in music. At the end of the week a grand concert will be given. Time will be announced.

A Dalles thief went into Mr. Baker's bedroom last week, took Mr. B.'s pants, and, going into a back yard with them, took $60 out of the pockets, but generously left the pants.

Some fields of wheat in Eastern Oregon are about ripe for the harvest. In this valley the harvest will begin later than usual, owing to protracted rains and cloudy weather.

On Wednesday, June 18th, Wallowa river was higher than ever known by the whites, and as it is 80 yards wide and runs at the rate of twelve miles an hour, it carries a vast amount of water.

The Union correspondent of the Bedrock Democrat is responsible for the statement that "there is to be erected in the Cove a school house and Church together, with a dancing hall overhead."

Two young lads were caught last week at the Dalles, on their way to an Indian ranch with several bottles of whisky in their pockets, supposed to be for "poor Lo." The whisky was confiscated and the boys were spanked.

The people of Baker City will celebrate the "glorious Fourth" by a procession, reading of the Declaration of Independence, an oration, and a basket dinner, under the supervision of the ladies. The La Grand brass band will be in attendance.

From the Bedrock Democrat of June 25th: "We have had several fine growing showers during the past week. Our farmers are all in good spirits in relation to their growing crops, and think—the balance of the season being favorable—that the yield will be bountiful."

Another bear story comes from Washington county. A few days ago a she bear and a cub made their appearance on the play-ground of a school house, about four miles from Cornelius. The boys of the school turned out and, aided by the teacher, succeeded in capturing and killing the cub. They gave chase to the old bear and ran her for some distance, she coming very near to some of the residences in the neighborhood, in her flight, and finally hiding in the timber on the farm of Mr. T. W. Lockwood, a typo in this office. He has lost nearly fifty head of sheep recently and thinks the presence of these bears accounts for the loss, and claims that he don't owe the marauders any more meat.

The Bedrock Democrat of June 25th says: "On the 15th of July there will be a match race over the Baker City race course, between Alex. La Buff's horse Buckskin and Ross' mare Maria—a single dash of one mile, for a purse of $1,600. Each horse is to carry 105 pounds. This bids fair to be the most exciting race ever run in eastern Oregon, and it is anticipated that large sums of money will change hands on the result. The track is being put in the finest order. On Saturday, July 26th, there will be a match race between Ross' mare Maria and the Stargiss horse, for a purse of $1,000—distance half a mile. The horse that wins this race will have to do some pretty running. Race men are already beginning to arrive in our city, and from all indications there will be a large attendance at these races."

FASHIONABLE NOTES.

At present the loose double-breasted polonaise is the especial adoration of feminine hearts.

Italian kid gloves are cheaper than the French article, and are said to be growing in favor.

Low shoes and stookings of gorgeous colors and patterns are to be worn by gentlemen this summer.

High-standing linen colors have embroidered edges, flaring outward in Medici style, with a soft full box-plaited frill of muslin inside edged with Valenciennes lace.

Bonnets are worn quite back on the head, showing the forehead and front hair. Whatever the shape, they must be narrow at the sides, the flowers, or Watteau designs, and mounted in ivory.

Silk hose in plain colors scarlet, violet or blue—are worn with kid or silk-buttoned boots, the latter slashed from top to bottom to show the gay stocking underneath. This innovation is too expensive to become general.

Walking boots are now made with low, broad heels, and the soles fitted to the shape of the foot. They are finished without bows or buckle, or fancy adornments of any kind, and depend wholly on their neatness and adaptability.

A Sacramento editor received an invitation to a fashionable party, having on the bottom of the card the customary R. S. V. P. (Respondez s'il vous plait.) He sent back his card with the initials, D. S. C. C., chuckling to himself, "I am not educated, but when it comes to tone, I am there." The recipient of his note was horrified to learn that the initials of regret, translated, were, "D—d sorry can't come."

For Sale,

350,000 Acres of Land

IN SOUTHERN OREGON.

Title Perfect—U. S. Land Grant Fully Confirmed.

THE "PACIFIC LAND COMPANY," INCORPORated with a capital stock of 5,000 shares of par value of $120 each, have purchased the road and entire land grant of the "OREGON CENTRAL MILITARY ROAD COMPANY," consisting of over 350,000 acres of Agricultural, Grazing & Timber Lands,

Passing from Kingsley City (127 miles from Portland by Railroad), through the splendid "Lake Country," to Silver City, near the border of Idaho

Each share of the PACIFIC LAND COMPANY thus representing a value over 100 acres of land, and is UNASSESSABLE

Three thousand shares belong to the Company, and will be offered for sale by us, the entire proceeds of which will go into the Treasury.

The first one thousand shares will be offered at $120 per share, United States Currency—say at the rate of 75 cents per acre. Every share will also be received at its par value of $40, in payment for land, as soon as the appraisals are made. Such share will then be cancelled, and a deed issued, and a deed given to the purchaser.

The land will be appraised at moderate rates, in accordance with its actual value, as soon as practicable, in sections of 640 acres, and at not less than $1 50 per acre, U. S. Currency, and offered for sale to actual settlers, however, always having preference

We refer, as to the character of this magnificent grant of land, to CLARENCE KING, Esq., the U. S Geologist for this coast, who is familiar with it from personal observation, also to the elaborate report of the Hon B J Pengra, late Surveyor General of Oregon, on this road and lands, from which we quote "There is but very little of the entire grant but what is valuable for either Farming, Grazing or Lumbering purposes."

As shares are cancelled, the average of acres to the remaining shares will naturally increase, and from cash sales dividends will be declared

IMMIGRANTS,

BY BUYING THREE SHARES, CAN SECURE GOOD LANDS, WITH PERFECT TITLE, AT LESS THAN GOVERNMENT RATES.

For Land Bonds of Trust Fund, the choice of the PACIFIC LAND COMPANY combine absolute security, based on the lands, with promise of large returns; and no investment can be better for CHILDREN, as the values of the property must necessarily increase rapidly in a few years

Installments for shares can be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s or in registered letters

Full particulars may be had in a descriptive pamphlet can be obtained at our office, where the subscription book for the shares is now open

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 1, 1873

CITY.

FOR FORGERY.—Some days ago we published a paragraph in relation to a certain man who had passed a dry goods store on Front street and purchased several articles of clothing. After making the purchases, he produced a check payable at the First National Bank, purporting to be signed by J. B Montgomery, the contractor on the Northern Pacific Railroad. Not suspecting anything, the merchant took the check. The man had bought goods to the amount of $9, and the check called for $34. Without carefully examining the check, or signature, the merchant handed it and handed back the required change. Some time after the customer had departed, the merchant having occasion to pass by the bank, presented the check for payment. He then learned for the first time that he had been swindled upon. Information of the forgery was immediately communicated to the Chief of Police, and a description of the forger given. For several days past the different efforts of the Chief were unawarded, and it was feared that the forger had left the city. On Saturday evening a suspicious appearing fellow answering in every particular the description of the forger, was observed loitering about Skidmore's drug store. As he stood for a moment under the full glare of the lamps at the display window, the Chief was convinced that he had found the man. Mr. Forger was arrested and taken to jail. There he gave his name as John Smith. To satisfy himself that the right person was secured, the Chief sent for the merchant. The man was identified at once when the merchant saw him. Yesterday morning the matter came up for investigation in the Police Court. Smith pleaded guilty to the charge that he passed the check, but denied to the Court he had obtained it from another person and was not aware that the signature was forged. The Court waived the formalities of an examination, and held the defendant to answer before the grand jury, now in session.

NEIGHBORLY.—Doc. Caples and "Blackhawk" who are near neighbors at St. Johns, but whose family relations do not exist between them on account of the proclivities of Caples' hogs for predatory excursions on Mason's farm. On this account a very bitter feeling has existed between the parties for some time, and almost culminated fatally last Friday. On that day Mason, in going to his house, had occasion to pass through an inclosure where Caples and his son [illegible], a youth of nineteen summers—were employed in spreading hay. On encountering the Caples, Mason thought it a favorable opportunity to resume the controversy in relation to the hogs, and gently insinuated that if Caples' hogs were not kept from raiding on his premises he would "fix 'em." One word brought on another, and in a short time an angry part of conversation was in full progress, during the course of which Caples ventured to make some scandalous remarks as to Doc. Caples' maternity. At this juncture William took the quarrel off his father's hands, and, as Mason alleges, made his assaults with a pitchfork, which had been left to accelerate Mason's departure from the premises. Boiling over with rage, Mason returned to his domicile and armed himself with a shotgun. Thus equipped, he returned to the "seat of war," and, as the Caples affirm, discharged the piece at the proprietors of the unruly hogs. Mason avers that he was so terribly excited that he was not certain whether he fired the gun or not, and was totally unable to give the Justice before whom the case was tried on Saturday, a satisfactory answer in regard to this particular feature of the case. It appears that no great damage had accrued from "this row in a teapot," the Judge dismissing the information.

A SORRY "LAUGH UP."—Officer McCoy met with an accident last Saturday evening, which might, and for Mr. Caples, have resulted very much to that gentleman of the peace. He was wending his way the corner of First and Alder streets when he heard the pistol shot discharged by the ex-Mayor Gale, at Wellington. Loud cries of "Police" and police were heard at the same time, and a rush was made for the corner of Alder and First streets, where the melee was in progress. Supposing an fearful tragedy was about to be enacted, the officer hastened with all haste to the scene. Near the corner of Alder and First streets stands an iron hitching post. This post is about four feet high, nearly two feet in diameter, and is firmly imbedded in the earth at the side of the sidewalk. At that hour of the night the shadow of the post was shrouded in darkness. In his haste McCoy did not perceive the post. Against the dangerous obstacle the officer threw his weight. Two hundred pounds of avoirdupois, moving with great velocity, naturally acquire no small momentum. One log and the side of the ponderous officer came in rude collision with the iron post. Nature's laws are inviolable. McCoy found it true in this instance. The earth ceased to assume an angle about 60 degrees to the horizon, and the officer, after gyrating about for the space of five or six seconds, measured his length on the walk. He was injured and badly stunned, and for some time scarcely knew where he was running. However, he rallied and reached the scene of the affray in time to separate the antagonists and prevent further injury than had already been committed. An idea can be formed of the force of the shock, when the united strength of two powerful men was unable to bend the post back to its original position.

UNSUCCESSFUL ANGLERS.—As the last remains of an ill spent life," we experienced yesterday the exquisite pleasure of having a solitary trout laid on our table. The piscatorial specimen before our gaze was the only substantial result of an angling excursion made by a party of young bloods from this city to Gaston on last Sunday. Our sense of gratitude for the gift is not in the least blunted by the fact that the fish was caught more than eight and forty hours before presentation, and had by exposure to the hot sun reached that mellow stage on its journey towards decomposition, highly odoriferous to the olfactory nerves. We are led only to recognise the fact that the gentleman who [illegible] it from the fishing basket of a certain [illegible] insurance agent where name doesn't begin with a B, had our pleasure in his optic while he stated the very questionable means of procuring the same. While the flavor of the fish might not [illegible] epicurean palate, yet so long as its odor will linger about our editorial den, we shall consider it to cherish the most lively sense of obligation to the present. Upon the honor of a gentleman we are assured that our gift was the only trout that the entire party caught after weary hours of angling. What they follows don't know about fishing might fill no inconsiderable volume.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH AT ST JOE.—The St. Joe people are determined to make their celebration far surpass everything else of the kind in the valley. They have a fine race track, which is to be brought into use—and among other feats of fleetness, several fast-footed racers, weighing over two hundred and fifty pounds each, have been entered. Delegations are going to St. Joe from all the surrounding towns, and a very large excursion from Oregon City will come down on the splendid steamer E N Cooke on the morning of the Fourth, take the train here and make the trip to St. Joe, spend the day there, return in time to see the fireworks in the evening and return to Oregon City, making a ride by steamer and rail of one hundred and twenty-five miles, seeing the best part of Oregon, the grand fireworks, the celebration, all in one day, for the small sum of one dollar and a half. Here is the biggest bill of attractions ever offered to the public.

ADMITTED TO BAIL.—The case of the State vs. Gale came up for examination yesterday in the Police Court. The defendant, as our readers are doubtless aware, was charged with the commission of an assault with a pistol on the person of one North Wellington. The attorneys for the defendant appeared and waived an examination. The Court fixed the bail at $500. Gale's friends were out yesterday endeavoring to procure the required bonds. The grand jury, in session at present, will investigate the charge in a few days.

PRISONERS ARRIVED.—The two persons—named in Monday's issue—who were convicted of grand larceny at the Dalles last week, and sentenced to the Penitentiary for two and four years respectively, arrived in the city last evening in custody of Sheriff Shutte, en route for Salem. The Sheriff also had two other prisoners in custody, who will be tried in the U. S. Circuit Court for disposing of liquor to Indians.

FALLS ENCAMPMENT.—A. J. Marshal, D. D. G. P., will depart this evening for Oregon City. He goes up on official business and will install the officers elect of Falls Encampment, No. 4, I. O. O. F., at that place, to night.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Attention is called to the advertisement asking for information of the whereabouts of Ephraim Howells.

OFFICERS ELECTED.—Minerva Lodge No. 17, I. O. O. F.—At their regular meeting of last night the following officers were duly elected for the ensuing term: William Pfunderpht, N. G.; Joseph S. Keller, V. G.; John Klosterman, R. S.; G. Voss, Treasurer. S Levy, P. S. The installation follows next Monday night. All brothers are invited.

SCHOOL EXERCISES.—The union exercises of the Central Grammar School and High School will take place to day, commencing at 10 o'clock. The attendance of parents and friends interested in the cause of education, is respectfully solicited.

LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY.—The Ladies' Relief Society will meet at the usual place at 2 o'clock to-day.

BASE BALL.

A club composed of colored men is talked of.

19:h—At Baltimore, Atlantics, 2; Baltimores, 10.

The base ball fever rages with undiminished fervor at Olympia.

The game between the Pioneer and the Clackamas Clubs will not take place on Thursday, as we had been informed. The game will be announced in a few days.

At a special meeting of the Pioneer Base Ball Club held last evening Captain J. R. Wiley tendered his resignation as Captain of the First, owing to an accident caused while playing at Salem last Saturday, which compels him to retire from active service. Mr. Joseph Buchtel was elected to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Wiley. The latter gentleman was elected President of the Club, Mr. Buchtel having resigned to fill the position of Captain of the First Nine. The second game of the series with the College Club of Salem will be played to morrow, to commence at 10 A. M. It is desired that the First Nine of the Pioneers appear for practice on the grounds at 4 P. M. A full attendance is requested.

Another of Mr. Greeley's Letters

Mr. George E. Baker has published a number of letters from Mr. Greeley to himself, among which is the following:

NEW YORK, Aug. 17, 1855.

G. E. B.: I want to suggest a new name for Secretary of State, in case we concede that office (as I think it best) to the Democracy. I propose William C. Bryant. You know I don't like him personally, nor he me, but I can't think of any man of greater mark, and I think he is thoroughly honest and capable. Depend on it, there are a good many of all parties who would proudly and gladly vote for him. If we can only keep off the ticket the names of all who want to be put on, I think we must succeed. And I don't believe there is a man in the State who has less idea of being a State officer than Bryant. Don't make us swallow Ben Butler if there is any help for it. He would go very hard. Yours,

HORACE GREELEY.

The public is found has been somewhat agitated with the Modoc war, an occasional murder or railway disaster, and the dull times, and the prospect of buying clothing at a figure not large enough to clear a man to the bedrock. The place has been found where you can buy men and boy's clothing, or gentlemen's furnishing goods, at the very lowest prices. It is at Beck & Waldman's, corner of Front and Washington street, where a full assortment of men and boys' clothing, in the latest styles, can be selected from.

The President then proceeded to read his annual message, which was as follows.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Gentlemen of the Board of Trustees of the City of East Portland: Pursuant to custom, I now lay before you my annual communication, embracing a statement of the financial condition of the city, together with such recommendations as in my judgment are proper and right.

FINANCES.

From the last annual communication of President Hawthorne, as well as from the reports of the Auditor and Treasurer, I learn that on the 27th of June, 1872, there was remaining in the Treasury unappropriated the sum of $1,078 28, general fund. Total amount of money belonging to the general fund collected and paid into the Treasury since June 27, 1872, to June 30, 1873, $6,000 97. Amount on hand, 27th of June, 1872, $1,078 28, making a total of $7,079 25.

There has been paid out on warrants from June 27, 1872, to June 30, 1873, $4,703 22, leaving a balance on hand in the Treasury of $2,376 03. There has been assessed and collected and paid into the Treasury for the improvement of I street $8,535 87; for the improvement of L street, $1,888 23, making a total of $10,424 10. Amount paid out on warrants for the improvement of I street, $8,535 87; for the improvement of L street, $1,898 23, making a total of $10,424 10.

There remains yet due and unpaid on the assessments for the improvement of L street, the sum of $1,413 93. The amount on hand belonging to the General Fund, is amply sufficient to meet any legitimate demands on said fund during the present fiscal year.

SUNDRY RECOMMENDATIONS.

I desire to call your attention to the condition of Water street: That street having been put upon so low a grade, there is great danger of its destruction by high water. I respectfully recommend that you take some action to secure that important improvement.

I also call attention to the practice of paying for all repairs of streets and sidewalks, out of the General Fund. Such is not the usual practice in most cities. And if we, instead of paying for such repairs out of the General Fund, should assess the cost thereof against the adjacent property (as is usual in most cities) the assessment against the general tax-payer could be greatly diminished.

THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

The organization of a municipal government in this place was perhaps premature. But a city government has been organized, and under it a large amount of money has been expended on improvements, and it is important that such improvements be taken care of and kept in proper repairs. It is, therefore, absolutely necessary to maintain our city government. But in conducting this city government it should be our aim to do so with as little expense to the tax-payers as possible consistent with the general welfare of the city.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion, gentlemen, permit me to assure you that I shall take pleasure in co-operating with you in your labors and deliberations for the general good of this city and its citizens. J. S. M. VAN CLEAVE.

East Portland, June 30, 1873.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE CITY.

The claims for labor performed on L, U, and Water streets, amounting in the aggregate to $44 50 were referred to the Committee on Accounts and Current Expenses. The claims of James Cason for $8 for work on the streets, and of A. J. Hoyt, for $451, for lumber, were laid on the table. The claim of J. A. Newell for $75, for services as Clerk and Recorder, was paid.

ORDINANCES.

An ordinance making an appropriation of $451 for the improvement of Eleventh street between Asylum and Washington, was read first and second time and laid over.

REPORTS.

The report of the City Marshal, in relation to the general tax list—showing the delinquents, and the amounts of property sold for delinquent taxes, was read and referred to the Committee on Accounts and Current Expenses.

MESSAGE REFERRED.

Trustee Hoyt moved that the annual communication of the President be referred to a special committee of three. The President named as such committee Messrs. Hoyt, Severson and Pape.

On motion the Board adjourned.

COQUILLE VALLEY.

FROM OUR TRAVELING CORRESPONDENT

COQUILLE VALLEY, June 23, 1873

To those who have visited and examined the climate, soil and productions of the Coquille river valley, its forks and branches, it is not surprising that it should attract so much public attention and draw so many settlers as it is doing at present, and as it will continue to do until it is thickly populated by industrious and enterprising farmers, its bottom lands cleared and cultivated that are equal in productiveness to the richest soil in the United States; its foot hills covered with numerous flocks, and its prairie hills and table lands with herds of the finest cattle.

THE CLIMATE

Of this beautiful valley is its greatest attraction The tide waters of the Coquille river form the ocean run to the Forks, a distance of 45 miles, so there is no stagnant water in its course. The purifying and invigorating breezes from Pacific ocean comes up every day about noon, and is felt to the most remote points of the valley, the forks and the numerous branches of the river. The result of this is that a case of chills and fever is unknown for 17 years in all this large district of country, except by persons who have fled from the valleys of Sacramento, Mississippi, and other similar valleys to find perfect restoration, receive health and vigor in the valley of the Coquille. When the visitor notices the healthy appearance of the children, the reply by mothers generally is, "There are no sick children in this valley." A child dying is a rare circumstance. Children are very numerous, from six to nine sons and daughters are common numbers composing a family, and fathers and mothers live to a good old age. There is not employment for a physician in the entire valley and its many tributaries, embracing a population of 1,200 persons, young and old. The ocean breeze keeps the summer cool; the warm ocean currents, the warm rains, the comparative absence of frost and snow keep the winters mild. Contrast this with the four months of deep snow and intense frost of winter and the four months of burning sun of summer in the Eastern and Western States, and the reasons for industrious families seeking and preferring a climate like the Pacific coast, particularly the southern part of Oregon, will be obvious to all.

THE RICH AND PRODUCTIVE SOIL OF THE COQUILLE

Is the second great attraction of this fertile valley. The valley proper up to its forks is 45 miles; the main, south and north forks are at least 100 miles long, adapted for settlements. The bottom or valley lands are three miles broad in many places; at other points, they narrow down to half a mile in breadth, and not a fourth is yet cleared. A farm of 500 acres will not have an average of more than a 100 acres cleared of timber and under cultivation on the oldest settlement. This arises principally from the want of facilities of getting grain and other produce to market. What is cleared and cultivated is productive almost beyond credit, except by those who have seen and examined for themselves. Wheat produces an average of 35 bushels to the acre; when raised on virgin soil and afterwards well cultivated from year to year, from 50 to 75 bushels to the acre are common results. Oats yield from 40 to 80 bushels to the acre, and so of barley under similar treatment as for wheat. Potatoes yield an average of 300 bushels to the acre, and 500 bushels are not unusual, and will be raised to average the latter quantity when a convenient market is secured. Turnips, beet, mangelwurtse', carrots, parsnips, cabbage, produce from 30 to 40 tons to the acre. There is scarcely a vegetable known that the soil of the Coquille will not raise of the best quality and in the largest quantity to the acre of any soil known on the Pacific coast. Fruits of all kinds, except peaches and grapes, are very productive and of the choicest quality. Berries of all descriptions can be cultured to perfection and the quantities prodigious. Wild berries of all kinds known to the American soil, are almost illimitable in quantity and unsurpassed in quality. Honey is one of the peculiar and favorite productions of the valley. It is one of the commonest dishes on every settler's table, from the oldest and most successful to the settler of the most limited means. The honey made in the spring and early summer in the Coquille may challenge the world to surpass it for purity, color and delicacy of flavor. The honey made in the fall is dark and strong. The milk, cream and butter will bear favorable comparison with the choicest in Orange county, New York. The natural and cultivated grass and clover are striking evidences of the richness and productiveness of the soil. There is probably not a poor cow or other animal in the Coquille valley; the meat—beef and mutton—is rich and delicious, and the flesh of the elk and deer is choice. Game of all kinds is abundant and their meat delightful.

The Coquille river overflows the bottom lands of the valley more or less every winter, thereby manuring and renewing the soil every season, making it a garden soil of inexhaustible quality. The regular rains of winter, the gentle showers of spring, and the genial sunshine of spring and summer results in producing cereals, vegetables, grasses, fruits, flowers, honey, milk, butter, flocks and herds seldom equaled, never surpassed in quality and quantity to the extent cultivated. The clearing and cultivation is still very limited. For want of a convenient market there has presented little inducement to produce beyond the home and local wants of the valley, except sheep, cattle and hogs; these have been raised extensively and profitably for years. The valley is not the place for those accustomed to, or seeking, large prairie farms; it is too limited at present for such, but it is emphatically the place for small farmers of limited means, accustomed to work on and clear timbered lands, or those able and willing to do such work. There is room for thousands of such to homestead, pre empt or buy places on the Coquille river, its forks and branches, where prosperous and happy homes can be built up by constant industry, hard work, economical and other good habits, and particularly by the co-operation of a good wife.

In less than two years the poorest settler, with the habits mentioned, can build a comfortable cabin, clear from five to ten acres of land, cultivate a good garden with numerous vegetables of extraordinary growth; possess himself of two or more milch cows, a pair of horses, numerous hogs and plenty of chickens; have his table supplied with choice cream, milk, butter and honey; vegetables from his garden, trout from the river or creek, elk, deer and best meat, not forgetting that from the bush on his farm he can gather from June to September, as many choice berries as he requires for present use or for preserving.

On the South Fork of the Coquille river, which commenced to be settled about 17 years since, where the farmers have had time to clear and cultivate their farms considerably, build and finish good residences and office houses, they have displayed energy and enterprise, taste and culture that would compare favorably with the best farmers in the Willamette valley, and are, in all these respects fifty per cent. above the average of them. This is the conclusion come to after traveling through the country on foot for ninety miles, examining their farms, eating at their tables and sleeping in their houses.

Mr. Wm. Perry, of Perry's Ranch, on the main river, is an interesting example of this kind. He has been settled there about ten years, has a farm of more than 500 acres, has cleared and highly cultivated about 100 acres, has a fine dwelling house, a large barn, and numerous other office houses; has very fine milch cows, numerous stock and other cattle, has a good vegetable, fruit and flower garden; conducts a successful dairy, and raises a large quantity of honey. What crowns all, he has an excellent wife, who knows how to keep house, and a family of daughters, all of whom are married, that are an honor to their parents and a blessing to their husbands.

The late Dr. Herman, one of the early settlers on the South Fork, died about four weeks ago. He came from Baltimore in search of health, which he found in the Coquille valley. He was an accomplished gentleman, an enthusiastic admirer of Southern Oregon and of the Coquille valley in particular. His close observing powers, deep reflection and scientific attainments enabled him to appreciate the present advantages of the country, and with prophetic vision to predict its future greatness. His vast resources of thought, energy and enterprise enabled him to accomplish much in building up a comfortable home, a well cultivated farm, a noble example to the community and raising up a family of seven sons and two daughters, whom he inspired with his enthusiastic love of country, enterprise and progress, the cultivation of intelligence, refinement and the beautiful. The children have drank deep into their father's spirit, cherish his memory and example as a precious legacy, and are every way worthy sons and daughters of a noble and honored father. Mrs. Herman still lives to preside with dignity and grace at the head of the household, the members of which "rise up and call her blessed." These are samples of many others of a similar character in the Coquille valley and its branches that could be given. When the facilities in contemplation, referred to in former communications, for getting productions of the soil to market are put in operation, the clearing of the land will be rapid, the productions of the soil will be great, the development of its resources will be vast, and the settlement of the country will be rapid and dense.

NORTHWEST.

A MATTER THAT REQUIRES ATTENTION.

PORTLAND, July 1, 1873

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

I desire to call your attention, as also that of the public, to a great nuisance that is permitted to exist with perfect impunity in our midst. I refer you to what is known as the Cornucopia Saloon, situated on the corner of Alder and Second streets, in this city, and kept by a man named Carr. This saloon should be called the Portland mad-house, for it is the headquarters and rendezvous for all the murderers, thieves, ex penitentiary convicts, hoodlums, shoulder-strikers, cock-fighters and black-legged gamblers which, unfortunately for the community, infest our city with their presence to a considerable extent.

I hold it to be the duty of law-abiding citizens to either make the proprietor of this establishment keep an orderly, quiet house, or else close it out entirely. That this shebang is a curse to Portland no one will deny, for the past as well as the present history of the concern will fully substantiate this assertion.

Only a few years ago one of the most atrocious, cold-blooded, cowardly, sneaking murders that has ever been perpetrated in this State took place in this saloon, in which the unfortunate victim was crept upon by his blood-thirsty assassain, and without a word of warning, was shot in the back of the head and instantly killed. Another instance, some years ago, a slight misunderstanding occurred between two men, which could not be settled by them except by exercising each other with their six-shooters. Several shots were exchanged, neither of the "fightingers" was hurt, but an innocent bystander was shot and killed. Already four men have been killed in this house. Innumerable shooting and cutting scrapes have taken place in which the assailed parties escaped death by the skin of their teeth, and still the shooting goes on, with perfect indifference. At all times of the day, and especially of evenings, it is nothing unusual to see the sidewalk in front of the building thronged with the motley crew that frequents this den to such an extent, that it is impossible for decent, respectable ladies to pass, and in a number of instances, they have been obliged to leave the sidewalk and walk across the street, in order to get by.

My attention was called, the other evening, to a case where a couple of men were engaged in a quarrel, when a respectable young lady happened to be passing by there, just as they were about to get to blows; a simultaneous rush was made by the hoodlums, dog-eaten Celestials, and the young lady was completely surrounded, and would, doubtless, have been frightened half out of her wits, had it not been for the timely interference of a policeman, who made a ten-strike, and scattered the crowd to their respective hiding places.

Now, I have no objections to a man's keeping a saloon, but because he is permitted to do so, he is not licensed to keep a mad house. And I truly hope, and I believe I reflect the sentiments of the respectable portion of the community, when I say to the City Council should take this matter under advisement, and devise some plan by which this nuisance should be abated.

Yours, REPORTER.

Negro Funeral Sermon.

Last week, says a Richmond (Va.) correspondent of the Albany Argus, we determined to hear one of the real, thoroughbred, old-fashioned colored preachers. We inquired of our waiter if such a one held forth within a radius of five miles. "Ya, ya, massa, go hear Brudder Jasper preach. He do kind you want. He frow himself all out of shape." It was the kind and we went. In a room, sixty feet by twenty five wide, were gathered the largest crowd of colored people we ever saw. We were the only representatives of our color present, and the whitewashed walls were darkness itself compared to our face when Brother Jasper arose and stated that in the evening he would deliver a funeral sermon on two children who had just died of the small pox. The minister then remarked that he would that morning repreach a funeral sermon on a gentlemen they all knew. The history of the case was this. Samuel Whiston sent his wife to New York with the promise that he would follow her, but within a week he was taken suddenly ill and died. Our imagination supplied the name of the disease—small-pox, of course. On the Sabbath following his death Jasper had preached his funeral sermon, but Mrs. Whiston was unable to reach Richmond in time, so, she being now present and requesting it, he was to repeat it. He went on to state that Samuel Whiston was not a Christian. In fact, he was not what one could call a good man. The company he kept was disreputable. But it was ascertained that a short time before his death he was engaged in a religious controversy. As the preacher neglected to state on which side the polemical Samuel was arguing, any peculiar religious tenets he may have held must be forever problematical. However, this fact was the sole ground for eulogy developed by his history. Apparently he was a "wretch" by no virtue redeemed." Unlike De Quincy's man, there was no sympathizing friend to say of him in deprecatory tones "Ah! but he did whistle beautifully, at any rate.

Brother Jasper spoke very fair English until he got well into his sermon, when he lapsed into the negro patois, with all the boldness of thought and fancy so common to his race. He drew a picture of the judgment day, beside which the creation of a Festus would be weakness. The blood curdled in our veins, we were as one frozen with fear, as he proceeded, gathering vigor from his own agitation. Each inflation of the lungs was accompanied with a rasping, asthmatic sound, which gave an added horror. At his bidding the gray old earth stood still; the sun went blind, the storm ceased gnawing; a dull, low sound was heard, as of the "march of bones under the ground." From the churchyard and the minster tomb, from the bottomless seas and from the bottomless wells and the frozen mountain tops, came the dead and stood before the Great Bar. On the battlefield, limb joined limb, the blood coursed as of old, and the warriors advanced with the endless throng to the judgment. "De mighty king and the purple-covered monarch of the world will be dar. De President of de United States will be dar. Henry Wilson will be dar. De legislators, de common councilmen, de night watch, dey all will be dar, and Samuel Whiston, he will be dar." Shrieks, wails, gnashing of teeth were heard all over the house. Advancing in his picture he drew a companion piece to the "Inferno." Anticipating slightly the final judgment, the good Jasper sent many a hapless soul thither, and with the number went the subject of the sermon, Samuel Whiston himself. However much Brother Jasper may have liked him, it would not do, he said, to conceal the truth. It was not that he loved Samuel less, but his church more. His affection for Cæsar was swallowed up in his love for Rome.

Leaping over the pulpit's desk, and fixing his piercing eye on the weeping widow below, he consoled her thus: "Yes, Samuel Whiston hab gone to de lake what flows with fire and brimstone. Dat is de truth. If you want any one to plaster his memory for him, go hire some oder preacher; for I isn't de boy to plaster."

This reminds us of the reprobate Rips's eulogy of his friend: "Und Deidrich Knickerbocker, vere vas he?" "Diedrich Knickerbocker," shewered a neighbor; "oh, he has been dead this many a year." "Vat is dat! Diedrich vas dead! Vell, he was a bretty myn man mit some dings, but he was meaner as others."

Washington Neither a Fool Nor an Aristocrat.

Void of all vain pride as he was of the ordinary love of approbation, George Washington neither knew nor professed to know anything about his ancestry beyond the family tradition that the progenitor who brought the name to America "came from the northern counties of England." How much more solicitous than their subject have some of his biographers been to trace out for him both an old and an aristocratic pedigree! It is now positively humiliating to reflect on their waste of time and labor, for Colonel Joseph Lemuel Chester, an American genealogist residing in England, in the merciless iconoclast of the Historic figures which the biographers had set up as the line of Washington's forefathers. Colonel Chester has irrefutably demonstrated that Lawrence Washington, of Brighton, Northamptonshire, had sons, John and Lawrence, but they could not have been the brothers who emigrated to Virginia about 1657, for John was knighted, married, and had three sons before 1624, and in 1678 his widow (who had been his second wife) made her will. It will be difficult, indeed, to identify this Sir John with the Mr. John Washington who emigrated, and whose will of 1675 speaks of a deserted wife and mentions a living one. Colonel Chester also proves undeniably that Lawrence Washington, of Brighton, was proctor in Brasenose College, Oxford, in 1621, and that from 1633 to 1643 he was rector of Purleigh, Essex, from which, in the latter year, he was ejected. He probably died in that neighborhood without having emigrated to Virginia. Where, then, are all the pedigree fabrics of Washington? Are we all to be transformed into such extreme genealogical cynics that men will deny the identities of their own grandfathers unless they personally knew them? Is there any such thing as absolute truth in history? In the light of Colonel Chester's investigations, Cho appears almost as much a demon as a muse.—World.

Persons who write for newspapers are generally very favorably impressed with the beauty of expression, the solidity of thought, and attractive style of their communications. And to attempt to alter or change it is always hazardous.

Poets frequently dedicate their brilliant verses to some fair lady, to whom they imagine for the time being the eyes of the entire world are directed. And so they pass a sleepless night preceding the day of publication, and rise in the morning with fevered anxiety to see how great the public furore is over their production.

It is not surprising, then, that occasional disappointments in cases of this kind produce fatal results. Tired and disappointed, the weary poet seeks the repose beyond this negligent world.

We notice one poor fellow, bright with genius, who wrote to the cherished idol of his heart, with a brilliant dash of alliteration, that her form was "rich and rare," when his anxious eyes fell on the printed song he found it changed to "sick and sore." The rope was strong, and he was dead before assistance arrived.

PHOTOGRAPHING A KISS.—In the neighborhood of Chiselhurst, the other day, an enamored pair were walking pleasantly along, quite unconscious of their surroundings, and more particularly of the fact that an itinerant photographer had taken up his position, surrounded by an interesting crowd. As the swain and the maiden took their way, what more natural than that the former should imprint a chaste salute on the pouting lips of his fair companion? What more annoying than that the camera should have seized them in the act, and rendered it immortal? The hapless couple became aware of the fact from the loud outburst of laughter which ran through the assemblage as the plate was held up, and the girl at first stormed and threatened; but, subsiding into a more reasonable mood, offered to purchase the negative. But the photographer was immovable. He was willing to sell any number of copies, but insisted upon retaining the original.

It the skirts of dresses are trimmed, a number of narrow flounces is preferred to the deep flounce, which has held favor so long.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average: California, 11s 11d@11s 12d; club, 12s 4d, 12s 5d

From the Eastern cities the intelligence reaches us by mail of a continued and growing ease in financial circles. A New York paper of the 19th says: "Money has been even easier for the past week, and demand notes are quoted at three per cent., transactions ranging between that and four per cent. Discounts were easy at seven per cent. or even a fraction lower, and the banks continue to have no inducement to enlarge their line of accommodation. Last Saturday's bank statement showed a gain of $482,800 specie, and $1,080,000 legal tenders, the loans are only increased $409,000, while the deposits are augmented by $3,195,300, and the circulation $31,300 lower. Applying the twenty five per cent. rule, this statement increases the reserve by the sum of $1,158,82[illegible], making the total to $11,674,180.

Our local finances are reported as being in a somewhat anomalous condition when funds are plenty, high rates prevail and business dull. That the amount of capital on deposit is considerably larger than it was a few months ago is not questioned, but the great complaint now is, that the current interest, commission, etc., for its use are higher than investments offering will warrant. Borrowers would be able to secure any required sum, but it must, of course, be done on prime paper, and at a discount of one and one and a half per cent. per month. Under the present dull state of affairs men seem generally disinclined to undertake extensive enterprises on capital with such a drawback. The state of affairs is doubtless retarding the progress of our State, as its resources cannot be developed without the capital which is thus kept out of circulation.

The Half-Year's Imports.

The following is a list of the principal articles imported into Oregon at this port during the six months ending to-day, June 30, 1873: Agricultural implements, 1,962 packages; bags and bagging, 457 bales; boots and shoes, 2,589 cases, canned goods, 3,116 cases; candles, 1,964 boxes; coal, 705 sacks, 8 casks and 45½ tons; coffee, 2,785 sacks and 149 cases; cement, lime and plaster, 4,518 barrels, cigars, 400 packages, 2,475 bales and packages; drugs, chemicals, etc., 2,964 cases, fish, 72 bbls, 91 bbls and kits; fruits, 2,036 packages, hardware, 2,274 packages; iron, pig, 160 tons; manufactured iron, 4,792 bills and 12,557 bars; steel bars, 167; bundles steel, 69; plate and sheet iron, 439 packages; pipe, 270 bdls; tin, 5,370 boxes and 816 pig tin, lead, 261 pigs, tinware, 1,418 packages; copper, 30 pkgs; zinc, 45 pkgs; molasses, 90 pkgs; syrup, 58 bbls and 387 half bbls, 7,603 kegs; nails, 6,092 kegs, naval stores, oakum, 109 bales; turpentine, 493 cases, rosin, 28 bbls; coal oil, 3,888 cases, olive oil, 166 cases; lard oil, 292 cases and 17 bbls. oil, miscellaneous, 732 cases and 55 pkgs; linseed oil, 86 cases; white lead, 411 cases and 405 pkgs; unspecified paints, 86 cases, 267 pkgs and 6 casks; bacon, 188 cases; lard, 250 cases; hams, 50 pkgs, rice, 37,210 mats and 631 sacks, soap, 3,050 boxes, salt, 159 tons and 17,311 pkgs, starch, 624 boxes and 147 crates; spices, 454 pkgs, sugar, 892 bbls, 2,695 half bbls, 263 boxes, 196 mats and 8,649 kegs; spirits, miscellaneous, 1,467 cases and 1,[illegible] pkgs, tea, 2,340 pkgs, tobacco, 1,490 pkgs; wines, 315 pkgs and 691 cases.

Wheat Crop of the United States.

The wheat crop of the United States last year yielded nearly two hundred and fifty millions of bushels, a considerable increase over 1871, when the increase was not quite two hundred and thirty-one millions. Pennsylvania years ago, was the great wheat producing State of the Union, but its comparative yield has since declined, so that in 1872, producing 11,603,000 bushels, it was only the ninth State in the order of wheat growing, Pennsylvania's yield being exceeded by Ohio, Michigan Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and California. Last year's wheat crop in Pennsylvania was a short one, however, the yield in 1871 having been over nineteen millions of bushels, an amount exceeded by but one State—Illinois—which grew over twenty-five millions of bushels. Last year the heaviest wheat crop was that of California, over twenty-five and a half millions of bushels, Illinois coming second with twenty-four and three quarter millions.

Timber Lands and Lumber.

From the Olympia Courier of June 29th: "We learn from William Jameson, U. S. Deputy Surveyor, that he has recently completed the survey of two townships of land lying on the shores of Hood's Canal, that are remarkable for the size and density of the forests that cover them. Township No. 23 North, Range 4 West, is thought by competent judges to have standing upon it trees that will make 300,000,000 feet of good lumber. One section alone, after excluding half the trees, is estimated to contain 15,000,000 feet. Nearly all of the good and available timber lands there are already occupied by settlers, and some 8,000 acres have been filed upon. Trees are quite common that will yield 8,000 feet of good lumber.

The Wool Market.

The Commercial Herald of June 26th has the following in relation to the Wool Market in San Francisco:

The market presents no new features for the week and until large holders of Southern are willing to meet the views of buyers business will continue dull. The Ajax, from Oregon, on her last trip, brought down 630 bales. Our receipts thus far the present season are somewhat in excess of same time last year, and the quality as a whole not so desirable, there being a greater proportion more or less defective, short staple. The bulk of the long staple has been marketed, leaving but little that is desirable of the Northern Spring fleece. The bulk of that which remains, and the stock is considerable, is for the most part held above the views of buyers. It is burry, dirty, not to say earthy, and the per centage of loss in washing very great. Many lots during the week have been picked up, aggregating 500,000 lbs. We quote the best Northern fleece, 22@23c; average clip 18@19c; medium, 16½@18c; burry and dirty nominal, 10@12½c. Slightly burry and heavy non-burry in light demand at 13½@15c.

Our local market is showing some signs of activity and though buyers are free in offering current rates, holders still seem inclined to be backward, claiming that better prices must prevail. The receipts of the spring clip so far aggregate about 275,000 pounds and has sold at 18@23 cents per pound—the latter figures only for choice lots.

Our Grain Exports

We give place to the following, from the San Francisco Bulletin of 26th, in regard to our exports of grain during the past year, although some of the figures are only approximately correct:

Oregon has enjoyed an unusually active trade in wheat and flour during the past year. A larger number of wheat cargoes was dispatched direct to England than in any previous year. Considerable flour was also sent to China. The shipments to San Francisco were less than in previous years. Those for the year were as follows:

	Flour, Barrels.	Wheat, Centals.	Oats, Centals.
July	1,295	.....	.....
August	1,641	43	.....
September	3,628	.....	703
October	9,152	.....	4,903
November	11,377	.....	5,101
December	10,501	.....	7,900
January	19,482	3,622	15,196
February	11,177	4,964	8,902
March	10,744	3,674	6,801
April	7,367	15,630	7,684
May	6,026	10,674	14,226
June	6,692	4,477	8,025
Totals	89,700	58,989	76,484
In 1871-72	138,376	259,718	2,246
In 1870-71	180,010	4,485	8,112

Reduced to the basis of wheat, the flour and wheat receipts from Oregon during the past year show an aggregate of 348,000 centals, against 720,800 centals for the previous year, and 885,700 centals for the year 1870-71. The wheat shipment direct from Oregon to England during the past year amounted to 512,000 centals. The imports of railroad iron attracted an unusual number of vessels to Portland last year. These having now ceased, and the tonnage supply will therefore be deficient. The bulk of the wheat surplus in Oregon during the ensuing year will either have to be sent to San Francisco for re-shipment, or tonnage will have to be sent up from this port. We have just sent up two ships to Portland to take cargoes from the old crop to Cork, and others will follow so soon as they can be secured.

Miscellaneous

There are in the United States 532 iron furnaces, of which 34 have been abandoned.

The Pittsburg Commercial says "the exports of specie from this country are now mainly confined to silver. The supply of this metal from the silver mines in the Rocky mountain range and from the Pacific coast is nearly sufficient to meet the export demand and prevent the exportation of gold."

We have heretofore mentioned the export of iron ore from this country to England and now we have, in a trade report from Wolverhampton, dated May 28th, the following: "The prevailing high prices are bringing about extraordinary results. It transpires on 'Change here this afternoon that a consumer in this district is about to import from America 1,000 tons of pig iron, wholly made in the country, and that the railway axels also made in the United States are selling there at £20 per ton under the quotations of the leading English markets. The iron orders are fast running out here, and there is much undercutting. Inferior lots are offered in lots of 200 tons, at £12 15s per ton."

Six thousand pounds of Oregon wool sold in the New York market, June 11th, at 37½c ₱ lb.

The Washington (Penn.) Reporter says: Now that our farmers have shorn their sheep, the question is what they shall do with it. As yet buyers are scarce and shy. But few sales have taken place and the market is extremely dull. We have not heard of over 50 cents being paid, and from that down to forty three.

FLORENCE!

THE BEST SEWING MACHINE IN THE WORLD. It does more work, more kinds of work, better work and draws work easier than any other machine.

If there is a FLORENCE within a thousand miles of Portland not giving entire satisfaction, if I am informed of it, I will attend to it without expense of any kind to the owner.

We have the new style of FLORENCE machine that feeds the work away from the operator (like the Howe or Singer) to meet the views of those preferring that style of Machine.

I have located permanently at Portland, and shall keep constantly on hand a large assortment of all of the latest styles of the Florence machine. Call and see them before purchasing elsewhere.

I have also the agency for the celebrated NONOTUCK CO. SEWING SILK and TWIST, JOHN CLARK JR. & CO.'S SPOOL COTTON, WILLISTON & CO.'S MACHINE OIL, CHINE OIL.
